

Get Accredited

Better Stronger Remodeling Companies.

Do you have what it takes?

Getting your company accredited is a worthy endeavor that builds excellence and distinction for your business. Elevate your company's profile and position in the industry. Invest the time and resources into the NARI accreditation program and through the process, you will improve your company's business systems.

To promote the highest standards of remodeling, the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI) has established the Accredited Remodeling Company (ARC) program to support both remodeling companies and consumers:

- To the company seeking accreditation—differentiate yourself by demonstrating solid business practices that improve the success of remodeling projects and client relationships to achieve excellence.
- For consumers—accreditation provides assurance that an external organization (NARI) has evaluated the company and found the organization conforms to sound business practices and is committed to improving its services. Having a third party validation builds consumer trust.

NARI Accreditation: A Hallmark of Excellence.

While the NARI Certification Programs provides recognition of individuals, Accreditation provides recognition on a company basis. NARI accredited companies demonstrate sound business and operations practices and must have at least one employee with specialized credentials – NARI certifications: MCR, CR, CKBR and other NARI certifications or a Top Tier certification from NAHB or NKBA. This not only shows a commitment to professional skills development, but also improves results in client relationship and projects overall. By using the NARI ARC logo on member websites and being recognized on NARI's website, an accredited company receives unique marketing benefits and consumer-driven exposure as a superior remodeling company.

Benefits of Accreditation

The investment of time and money provides benefits including:

- Plan your roadmap for increased profitability
- Participate in continuous improvement processes
- The goal is better, not necessarily bigger companies
- Take advantage of third party validation of your company's programs and services
- Follow a higher set of standards for your company's process, programs and people

Enjoy recognition of THE Industry Standard – use the NARI ARC logo and marketing materials to stand out.

Steps to Accreditation

▶ Who's Eligible?

Companies eligible for the NARI accreditation program typically fall between just under one million dollars in revenue to over $50 million. The NARI ARC program focuses on remodeling companies such as:

- Build-only remodeling company
- Design/Build remodeling company
- General Contractor
- Kitchen & Bath remodeling company
- Historic Renovation company

Remodeling companies that meet the following minimum requirements may be eligible to apply for accreditation:

- Continuous operation as a remodeling business for at least five consecutive years.

◀ OR ▶

- Continuous operation as a remodeling business for at least three years and demonstrated experience in remodeling by a management team of at least five consecutive years (with review of management team resumes).

▶ Application Process

STEP 1: Company Self-Assessment

The NARI accreditation process begins with a thorough self-assessment and documentation of your business practices and operations. Start today at NARI.org/ARC.

STEP 2: Reviewing Your Application

After receiving your application and payment, NARI's Accreditation Department will review and update you periodically on the status of the application. They may also contact you with requests for clarification and/or additional information. Your timely response to any follow-up request will help keep your application moving ahead.

STEP 3: The Decision Process

When NARI has completed its review of your accreditation application, the Accreditation Board will issue an official notice regarding your accreditation status. That notice will include the Board's decision as to whether or not your company has received accreditation.

▶ What are the Fees for NARI Members*?
